

March 22 1818

Dear Sir,

I am so deeply indebted with the kindness, readiness & liberality with which you have so immediately complied with my Request, that I trust you will forgive my troubling you with these few lines as I could not with safety I had by means of my poor strength (however imperfectly) to express how truly sensible I am of your kind: : help and how gratifying it is to me to receive to Henry and ad: : returned a proof of your friendship & attachment to a Brother so very very dear to me — I shall not fail to inform him of this communication as soon as possible, & as you know his heart you can better imagine than I can describe how warmly he will be gratified with the liberality of his kind friend which has been so invaluable for many years and which he is frequently referred the sincerest return — I wish I could verbally thank you as it is impossible to be present to do I feel in the mean time — I have requested Edward Taylor to communicate to you my wishes respecting the money: therefore I will no longer detain you than to repeat my warmest thanks offering you that while I have this act of kind: : help will ever be offered from the Treasury of

Dear Sir

Your very sincere friend

