Dear Sir,

I have fully understood

Your "Post-Private and Confidential" of Monday and shall therefore most anxiously await your letter of tomorrow. I do trust it may ^{not} announce great extent of recovery. However I may and must deplore the want of restoration of spirit and force in the King still we must consider the length of your imprisonment (and the severity of the suffering of His Majesty). In short the state of our beloved monarch is critical and we pray for your pleasant and hope for the best. I pray to God your medical abilities may be ultimately crowned with success and that I may have the satisfaction of seeing the King more restored to health.

Ever believe me,

Dear Sir,

Yours truly

J. P. Marshall
