

Duchess of Brunswick

52167-8

Bronsvic May 31th
1795

To Father

Be upon your guard, the Prussians have a mind to set the Prince of Orange a side, & make the Hereditary Prince holder the father is so disinterested that I am sure he would consent, if the Prince would be so well satisfied I do not know, the French have condescended to make a peace with the Dutch, the poor Oranges are sacrific'd, all the Prince of Oranges Estates Pillaged & Plunder'd, his Library & Cabinet of Natural History sent to Paris was with England to all eternity, if the Famine does not put an end to their heinous barorous injustices, we have had the Prussians Guards quarter'd here, &

Duchess of Brunswick

& we have had a hundred & fifty at dinner
I hope & trust that the dear Prince of Wales follow yours & the Queen's example in attending Church. The Prince has made himself very unpopular among the lower order of People by the neglect of Publick worship, & for her own sake I hope she will do every thing that is right both in publick & private. She is very sensible of your partiality to her, & loves & respects both you & the Queen. I am dear brother your most affectionately attached dutiful obedient servant &

Subject

Augusta

what can mean this delay at Berlin I know that Riedel is at Reinsberg with all his Wifes family. he is good for nothing & no friend to the poor Oranges

52168

Duchess of Brunswick
May 31. 1795.

33198

[Faint, mostly illegible handwritten text follows, including a signature and address.]