My dearest and more than brother, father, for you have done for me what few fathers would have done, I cannot sufficiently express the sense I have of your goodness to my unhappy Daughter nor convey in words the gratitude that I truly feel for the long continued Partiality with which you have favoured me, from the beginning I always advised her to speak to you, & to do nothing without first consulting with you, & to confide in none, I have just said all this as she now will be more in view, & cause much envy to her mortal Enemy the dear child I flatter myself will turn out well your Daughters are angels & why not give her the same people worthy have a Lady to appear in Public with her, for when she comes with her mother she wants nobody, I anxiously wish that all will go well, & that your health may be as good, as I wish I ever am my dearest brother with the truest gratitude your most affect'd devoted humble servant

& subject

The first of these is the fact that the British Government has been unable to secure the necessary amount of credit from the United States to finance its operations in the Pacific. This is due to the fact that the American public is generally opposed to the expansion of British power in the Pacific. The second is the
