My Dear Lord,

On your Lordship's arrival in this country you wrote to me on his letter reached me while I was travelling and therefore I had not time to answer it: since my return here this has been the first moment I could acknowledge your Lordship. The state of Ireland must attract my services consideration: but this is a subject much more fit for conversation than for a letter: it would require a volume: I shall hope to see your Lordship and Lady Fitzroy whenever you come this way: indeed very now comfortably situated here the Dutchess and myself will be happy to see you and the Countess in this house: we have the means of lodging occasionally our friends: the Dutchess sends me home in every heart good wish towards you and your family Prayer: for the present adieu and ever believe me

My Dear Madam,

Yours sincerely

William
