Dear George,

Again I trouble you with commissions, not for myself, but for my Uncle Prince Charles, who would be very much obliged to you if you would send him over a saddle & every thing relating to it with the bits of Bridles marked with his name.

Do not forget the Dog to be brought over by the Courier.

I am sorry to say you are a bad correspondent; but it is really true for I have wrote to you since my arrival in Germany four times at least, & I have not as yet received an answer: your occupations are so many & so great I suppose that you cannot find time to answer your brother's.

I am really so tired I can write no more, but to assure you that I am,

Dear George,

Your most affectionate Brother
