St. James's.

Sunday Afternoon.

Half past six.

Dear Blomfield,

On my arrival at Ham-mersmith I found my Thujer ignorant of his good fortune which on showing him the Gazette made him think lightly of his accident tho' it is a compound fracture: he pleaded so hard to come to town and the Surgeons as a necessity to have advice from Ashley Cooper that I have safely lodged George in St. James's without hesi-tation as the Dutches of herself desired he might have returned to his room next

Wednesday: after the expressive kindness of the Agent in sending his own carriage and intending to have called this evening on George at Beesby, I thought I had not de left that inform him of these particu-lar: advice and was believe me,

Yours sincerely
