

May it please Your Royal Highness,

We the Representatives of the Parishes in the County of Middlesex, ever anxious to gratify the Wishes of our Constituents, beg leave to offer our congratulations to Your Royal Highness. Your presence in Jamaica at this crisis, is highly acceptable to his Majesty's faithful Subjects. Threatened as we have been, by the machinations of powerful and ambitious Enemies, we behold in Your Person the future Champion for the liberties of mankind. Sir, this has ever been, the distinguishing characteristic of Your illustrious House. The dependences of Britain acknowledge the fact with gratitude, and the haughty House of Bourbon, shall view it with despair.

But let us not distress the feelings of Your Royal Highness, by a detail of inadequate panegyric. The gallant Admiral under whom

You have chosen to learn the art of war, and whose fame in naval achievements stamps a value on his testimony:— Lord Hood Sir, has anticipated our wishes, and the voice of the Royal Navy corroborates the presages of this able Officer.
