Lord Halifax most dutifully acquaints his Majesty that the Attorney General at the Meeting at Bedford House on Monday Morning informed the Lords that Assurance had been given him that no Step should be taken against the French Ambassador in consequence of the Bill of Indictment before this Day, nor even then, without his, the Attorney General's, Knowledge. He further informed the Lords that he had given Orders for the Matter being removed by Certiorari into the Court of King's Bench, which Lord Halifax concludes has been done, having ~~in~~ given him his Majesty's Express Orders to employ all legal and proper Means for preventing any Insult being offered to the French Ambassador. Lord Halifax has however on the Receipt of his Majesty's Note written to ^{the} Attorney General to know precisely what he has done.

Count de Guernsey was a long Time with Lord Halifax Yesterday Morning. was very tiresome hot & absurd, and seemed to have entirely forgotten the very little Knowledge of English Law his Misfortunes had taught him.
