Dear Brother,

I am to acknowledge

Yours of 2th instant and feel happy we have both agreed on the same day for the presentation of the Colours: Sunday is the only day we can assemble and by Sunday evening. I hope we shall all be cloathed.

You need not be afraid of your room as I shall sleep in your bed and consequently have constant fires in the room till you come up: as Mr. Gibson is to be with you next Saturday you will settle if he is to meet you: I suppose you will come here Saturday evening and stay till the following Sunday.

I will ask whenever you please for the Saturday and on the Sunday if you have no objection I would like to have Lord Duncan George Grey and Chambers shall with Dalrymple make the dinner party.

The papers will tell you what passed in both Houses yesterday: the King was not particularly agitated but was anxious to get away: I heard more
- they were today: Mr. Peber will tell you more
- marks and I will say nothing more as he will see you so soon.

I will write if you like to the Duke of Kent and Cambridge and over remain,

Yours affectionately

J. S. P.

The Duke of
