Dear Sir,

Ten thousand thanks for your obliging letter which considering the badness of the weather and the news to have been expected from Spain has given me great satisfaction: after all, I have been the true prophet and was always inclined to think Bonaparte would lead our army on back quietly.

I am glad you or rather the Prince have relured the Jordan's mind, who was very happy.

I feel very sensibly the Prince's attention and my trust George may continue to deserve the Prince's goodness.

Yours ever

William
